kisik

This series of paintings is inspired by the quiet spaces where Elders and Youngers sit together. They learn so much from each other through observation and careful contemplation. It is my hope to have as many of these moments as humanly possible as both.

Ta'wow/Welcome Directory

The City of Edmonton acknowledges the traditional land on which we reside, is in Treaty Six Territory. We would like to thank the diverse Indigenous Peoples whose ancestors' footsteps have marked this territory for centuries, such as nêhiyaw (Nay-hee-yow) / Cree, Dene (Deh-neyh), Anishinaabe (Ah-nish-in-ah-bay) / Saulteaux (So-toe), Nakota Isga (Na-koh-tah ee-ska) / Nakota Sioux (Na-koh-tah sue), and Niitsitapi (Nit-si-tahp-ee) / Blackfoot peoples.

We also acknowledge this as the Métis' (May-tee) homeland and the home of one of the largest communities of Inuit south of the 60th parallel. It is a welcoming place for all peoples who come from around the world to share Edmonton as a home. Together we call upon all of our collective, honoured traditions and spirits to work in building a great city for today and future generations.

Indigenous Edmonton is a dynamic, vibrant, and an energetic community. It is young, entrepreneurial, educated, culturally active, artistic, and caring. It is the home of the second largest urban Indigenous population in Canada, and lies in the heart of Treaty No. 6 territory.

The "Indigenous community" is not one community, but "many communities", and is, therefore, a reflection of the diverse and multifaceted Indigenous population that makes Edmonton their home. The Indigenous peoples in Edmonton have roots that are deeply sown and well-traveled through-out the whole of the City and extend from the past, through to the present, and will continue well into the future. The City of Edmonton has built upon the work initiated by the Edmonton Aboriginal Urban Affairs Committee to collaboratively reproduce, with communities, this directory with the intent to help you navigate the diverse and friendly Edmonton. We hope you find it useful. Your feedback and suggestions are welcomed.

Edmonton, AB T5J 1B9

PHONE: 780-424-4106

WEBSITE: <https://www.boylestreet.org>

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty. First established in 1971 as a small storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities.

Heather Shillinglaw has had over 25 solo exhibitions and numerous group shows. Known worldwide for her unique blending of traditional beadwork with mixed media and nature. Art has been an inspiration for her since she was a child, her dreams of being an artist flourished as she received a BFA from Alberta College of Art and Design in 97.

Her working palette is various methods of collaging and as she fuses these materials together the meaning and imagery from our landscape sets the focus on the healing powers of our prairies and boreal forests. Within her work there are threads of environmental awareness in both her paintings and sculptural pieces. She has learned from elders, medicine women and via cultural sharing while studying indigenous medicinal plants and sustainability for communities. As this has affected my passion and practice I have had invitations for speaking engagements in the USA, South America and Europe. My artwork can be found in many collections of both private and corporate collections, larger scale public works include the Fort McMurray TOTAL Aboriginal Interpretive Trail where you can find my newest piece 'Sky Spirit Courage of Mother Bear'. As an artist I take a holistic approach and share my art by teaching workshops and giving lectures about my work and the importance of art speaking the voice of protecting our environment to what will be left for future generations.

The Indigenous Artist Market Collective - IAM Collective is a grassroots group of nearly 80 artists, crafts people and creatives with roots in the Inuit, First Nations & Metis communities from all over Turtle Island, who all now live & work in the Edmonton & Area / Treaty 6 Territory.

We are all working together to share our stories, traditions, culture and art with the world around us. Through education we hope to share our teaching of APPRECIATION NOT APPROPRIATION with all who will listen.

We provide the general public as well as event organizers a direct link to locally hand crafted indigenous art, entertainment and educational displays.

We have a market space at the Edmonton Downtown Farmers Market (10305-97 St) on the second floor with 2-15 artists set up every weekend.

We can create delegate /employee / cooperate gift bags, making the giving of hand crafted indigenous art so simple.

Founded by Métis Architect and Artist, Tiffany Shaw, Reimagine Gathering Ltd. is an Indigenous-owned company borne out of an urgency for nourishing collaboration while pushing the boundaries for diverse voices to be prioritized, and given space to speak for themselves. We are an Indigenous futurisms design and fabrication studio that recenters intuitive, two-eyed seeing through multiple modes of creating. Engagement that invites reciprocity and relationship-building to support community-level stewardship from within their own capacity, as a tool for autonomy, is at the core of our heartwork.

Ranging across disciplines from craft to guiding policy to public art strategies, we facilitate various methods of design vernacular that prioritize culturally reflective, considerate spaces.

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty.

First established in 1971 as a mall storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities.

Our model starts with the student's needs and builds a plan for engagement around their interests and goals for themselves. Our teaching staff understands how to start where the students are and know when extra supports are needed to remove barriers to learning. Our cross-functional student services staff help students navigate around barriers and inform teachers how to best serve each student's unique learning needs.

Mission: We believe that both well-being and learning are necessary components of a healthy student. We are committed to offering an inclusive and accessible educational space promoting education, healing and self-growth for all students.

Our programs provide: Flexible programming to help students complete high school at their own pace. Customized course planning according to student need.

Education

Decolonizing educational practices as part of our efforts to meet the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Calls to Action for education. Work experience program to support success in the workplace after school. Support for eligible students to access Alberta's Learner's Benefits program. In-house counselling for social-emotional support, connections to a Physician, youth worker support, yoga classes, therapeutic massage, trauma support animals, and much more!

The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms gives Canadian citizens the right to vote in provincial elections. Elections Alberta is the official steward of that right on behalf of Albertans. Elections Alberta is an independent, non-partisan office of the Legislative Assembly responsible for administering provincial elections, by-elections and referenda. We administer the Election Act and the provincial electoral process in this province. We are responsible for administering elections at the provincial level specifically.

At Elections Alberta, we encourage all persons to explore the democracy in which we live. It is our goal to inspire all Albertans to vote and to help every citizen learn how they can help shape our province. Whether you are: young or old, new to Canada, multi-generational, or indigenous, sheltered or homeless, disabled, incarcerated, or in the Canadian Forces ...we're here to support you.

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty. First established in 1971 as a small storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities.

NCSA has been providing programs and services designed and delivered for Indigenous people, by Indigenous people in Alberta for over 50 years. We started by providing Courtworker assistance with the goal of attaining fair and equitable treatment for Indigenous people across the province. Over the years, NCSA has evolved to meet the needs of Indigenous people who often feel alienated by complex legal and court procedures. Our family and youth programs, family, youth and criminal Indigenous Courtwork programs, two correctional institutions for Indigenous offenders (Buffalo Sage Wellness House and Stan Daniels Healing Centre), and BearPaw Media and Education position NCSA as a leader in the development of restorative justice models and practices for Indigenous people.

NCSA's 40+ year history of producing high quality Indigenous training and resource production/distribution is unparalleled by any other organization.

Our mission is to promote the resilience of the Indigenous individual and family, through programs and services that are grounded in reclaiming our interconnectedness, reconciliation of relationships and self-determination.

The Alberta Family Information Unit (FILU) is a single point of contact to support families with Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls. The FILU assist families by: providing system navigation, including within the criminal justice system and other government entities; connecting families with community supports and culturally safe services, including Elders and other specialized supports such as victim services; providing outreach to reduce barriers; providing specialized knowledge and support regarding grief and loss, trauma, ambiguous loss and circle facilitation; engaging with other jurisdictions including the USA on the clients behalf; and providing funding support (including protocol) to families to attend healing and support events, court proceedings and family meetings with information providers.

FILU services are culturally safe. This means services are provided through an Indigenous lens with insight and understanding of Indigenous history and the resulting intergenerational impacts. A facilitated referral approach/warm transfer is used to address the resulting marginalization experienced by many families. All the Family Information Liaisons are also Indigenous and MMIWG family members.

NCCA has been providing programs and services designed and delivered for Indigenous people, by Indigenous people in Alberta for over 50 years. We started by providing Courtworker assistance with the goal of attaining fair and equitable treatment for Indigenous people across the province. Over the years, NCCA has evolved to meet the needs of Indigenous people who often feel alienated by complex legal and court procedures. Our family and youth programs, family, youth and criminal Indigenous Courtwork programs, two correctional institutions for Indigenous offenders (Buffalo Sage Wellness House and Stan Daniels Healing Centre), and BearPaw Media and Education position NCCA as a leader in the development of restorative justice models and practices for Indigenous people.

NCCA's 40+ year history of producing high quality Indigenous training and resource production/distribution is unparalleled by any other organization.

Our mission is to promote the resilience of the Indigenous individual and family, through programs and services that are grounded in reclaiming our interconnectedness, reconciliation of relationships and self-determination.

The Abortion Recovery Centre (ARC) was established to assist women who have had an abortion in their past and who are experiencing difficult emotional reactions to their abortion. We are compassionate, non-judgmental, and safe. All our peer volunteers are post abortive themselves and have walked that journey of pain. We are a companion, friend and support person in the reconciliation process. Our peer volunteers are trained in-house to facilitate our grief groups and/or one on one sessions. We do not have academic degrees in counselling, nor are we licensed professionals. Therefore, the group sessions and/or individual sessions are not intended as a substitute for professional counseling. We offer information, emotional, and spiritual support as well as practical help.
